

This abstract painting depicts the contrast between personal experience and societal context. The juxtaposition between the opposing colours allows the viewer to understand the heavy separation but the harmony that the complementary colours give the viewer can also help to show that they are fully intertwined.